Dear Eric F & Hyun-Ju Park Brown:

The Independent Office of Appeals (Appeals) received your case and assigned it to me for possible settlement.

I want to schedule a video conference as shown above to discuss possible settlement of your case. A video conference allows you to be seen and heard, and to share documents on screen without coming to an Appeals office. You'll need a high-speed internet connection. I can also hold the conference by telephone or in person, or I can work with you through the mail or secure messaging.

Please call me within 10 days from the date of this letter to provide an email address where I can send the link for the video conference, or to let me know if you'd prefer another type of conference or need a different date and time. If you want to meet in person, we'll do our best to find a reasonably convenient location and time, but limits and restrictions may apply.

Our meeting will be informal and you may present facts, arguments, and legal authority to support your position. However, if you plan to present or discuss any new material, or any documentation to support your position, this should be submitted to me (via fax or TDC is preferred) by 9/22/2025. This will allow me to conduct an in-depth review of the information, complete a comprehensive analysis, and be prepared to discuss the issues during the course of the conference. If new documentation and/or any other information are submitted, which was not previously considered by the examiner, the case may be returned to the examining function for consideration of such information. That determination will be made once/if any information is submitted to me. No new information, or any information that was not already contained in the case file, will be considered at the time of the conference. Please note that the submission date is final regardless of whether the conference date is subsequently rescheduled.

If I don't hear from you, I'll make my determination based on the information I currently have.

The Appeals process

Appeals is an independent function within the IRS. Appeals reviews and resolves disputes in a fair and impartial manner by applying the law and court decisions to the facts of your case. I'll consider the facts in your case and try to resolve your dispute with the IRS.

If you're new to Appeals, you may want to read the enclosed publications.

Additional information

At the conclusion of the Appeals process, an authorized vendor may contact you to perform an Appeals customer satisfaction survey. Your participation is voluntary, and the survey won't ask for personal or financial information of any kind. We'll use the results of the survey to improve the Appeals process and our service to taxpayers. See the Customer Satisfaction Survey page at IRS.gov/css to learn more about IRS-sponsored surveys and for a list of current and recent vendors.

Find tax forms or publications by visiting IRS.gov/forms or calling 800-TAX-FORM (800-829-3676).

If you have questions, contact me at the number at the top of this letter. If I can't help you, I can refer you to my manager, Ernest Mathis, at 213-372-4227. You can also visit IRS.gov/appeals.

IRS Secure Messaging allows you (and your authorized representative, if applicable) to communicate quickly and easily with me about your case. Please see the enclosed Publication 5437, IRS Independent Office of Appeals Secure Messaging, for more information. To register for secure messaging, please visit IRS.gov/connect or scan the QR Code at the top of this letter and enter my Secure Messaging ID (not Employee ID) when you register.

You can also fax a response or more information to the fax number shown on the first page of this letter using either a fax machine or an online fax service. Protect yourself when sending digital data by understanding the fax service's privacy and security policies.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Vivian Lai
Appeals Officer
